

Magical evening honors College's corps of volunteers

by Amanda Patton

Magic was in the air—literally and figuratively—during the second annual Gallaudet Volunteer Recognition Dinner on Thursday, April 25. "Volunteers are Magic" was the evening's theme as approximately 85 people joined together to honor the College's corps of volunteers.

In addition to a reception, dinner and awards ceremony, the program featured mystifying acts of prestidigitation performed by deaf magician Gary Lensbower. Don Pettingill, special assistant to the vice president for College Relations, served as the evening's master of ceremonies.

Saluting the College's 56 community volunteers and 26 student volunteers, Loraine DiPietro, director of the National Information Center on Deafness (NICD), noted that, "In 1984 volunteers registered with the campus-wide program gave a total of 7,000 hours of service to the College."

DiPietro, whose office coordinates the College's Volunteer Program, also mentioned the variety of ways in which volunteers contribute: working with students at all academic levels; serving as tour guides; presenting awareness sessions; providing information to the general public and campus visitors; and offering professional, technical and clerical support to faculty and staff in various College units.

The volunteer dinner included several special award presentations. Julia Berg Mayes, who taught in schools for deaf students for 33 years before retiring,

Results of Alumni Survey available

by Amanda Patton

The Gallaudet College Alumni Survey 1984 reports that "graduates strongly (68 percent) indicate they would select Gallaudet again if they could start college over." That was just one of the results of the survey, which was mailed to 4,411 alumni in mid-October. The survey is now available from the Center for Assessment and Demographic Studies. Faculty and budget unit heads have already received copies.

Brenda Rawlings, senior research associate with the Gallaudet Research Institute, co-authored the survey along with Michael A. Karchmer, Susan J. King and Scott C. Brown.

Work on the survey began last August. "We received the mission in August 1984," Rawlings said. "We had a planning group which included people from the Planning Office, the Office of Demographic Studies and the Alumni Office. Together, the committee members established a general methodology.

"The classes from the 1944 to 1981 were targeted," Rawlings explained, "because we wanted to survey alumni who are currently employed." It was felt that alumni who graduated before 1944 were likely to be retired and that alumni who graduated after 1981 were likely to still be in transition from college to professional life.

The 4,411 alumni who received survey questionnaires included all individuals in the College's undergraduate classes of 1944 through 1981 whose current addresses were known to the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement. All survey information was kept confidential and was used by survey staff only for grouped statistical data.

The report's executive summary states that "both those 2,669 alumni who completed their undergraduate programs (graduates) and those 1,742 alumni who did not graduate (non-graduates) were included in the study."

According to the report's introduction, "The goal of the study was to obtain information from the alumni about their education and how their Gallaudet experiences have influenced their professional and personal lives."

Crediting alumni participation, Rawlings said the overall response rate of 77 percent for graduates and 53 percent for non-graduates was key to the success of the project.

"Over three quarters of the graduates returned questionnaires, and took a lot of care in responding," said survey co-author Susan King.

Graduation May 20

More than 250 graduates will receive diplomas next Monday during Gallaudet's 121st Commencement. Scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m., Commencement exercises will be held at the Field House.

William Bennett, secretary of the U.S. Department of Education, and Randall L. Tobias, chief executive officer of AT&T Communications, will speak during Commencement.

Graduates and faculty members can pick up academic regalia at the bookstore on Friday, May 17 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Regalia should be returned to the art exhibit/study room at Ely Center after Commencement exercises. Upon return of the regalia, receipts will be distributed for redemption of diplomas at the Registrar's Office. Students will not receive diplomas until their regalia is returned.

Ecuador's first lady visits campus

The first lady of Ecuador visited Gallaudet College on April 26, meeting with the staff of the International Center on Deafness (ICD) and with Raymond Trybus, dean of Graduate Studies and Research.

Maria Eugenia de Febres Cordero, wife of the president of the Republic of Ecuador, spoke with Eli Savanick, director of the ICD, about the possibility of sending Gallaudet employees to Ecuador in the near future to help train educators of deaf students as well as other personnel there.

Ecuador, she said, is a country very anxious to broaden its services for handicapped people. Mrs. Febres Cordero was recently appointed president of the National Institute of the Child and Family (INNFA), an organization serving children, parents and handicapped people in Ecuador.

The first lady was accompanied on her visit by Conchita Ribadeneira, wife of the ambassador of Ecuador; Marcia Gilbert de Barbra, director of INNFA; Ana Maria Pacios, a member of INNFA; Mercedes de Arteta, president of the Ecuadorian Ladies' Association; Caridad Cazares, a member of the Ecuadorian Ladies' Association; Socorro Marchán, wife of the minister to the ambassador of Ecuador; and her daughter, Maiuxi Febres Cordero de Garcia.

While on campus, Mrs. Febres Cordero also went on a tour of KDES, during which time she met some of the students at the school.

Mrs. Febres Cordero was in Washington that week after accepting an invitation from Nancy Reagan to attend the First Lady's Conference on Drug Abuse.

A student at KDES presents Maria Eugenia de Febres Cordero, the first lady of Ecuador, with a copy of the "Roots and Wings" artwork prepared when the school was dedicated. Jean Moore of KDES is also pictured.

NIHR seeks proposal

The United States National Institute of Handicapped Research (NIHR) is seeking proposals for new research and training centers, rehabilitation centers, research and demonstration projects and knowledge dissemination and utilization projects under final funding priorities for fiscal year 1985.

Applications are due June 10. The total amount reserved for the projects is approximately $2,900,000. The secretary of the U.S. Department of Education intends to fund one or more grants in each priority area.

NIHR is permitted to make awards for up to 60 months and will fund grants or cooperative agreements. At the time of award, NIHR may negotiate cooperative agreements with successful grant applicants.

For further information, call NIHR at 732-1238 (voice) or 732-1198 (TDD) or call the Office of Sponsored Programs at x5034.

Twenty-five MSSD graduates participated in a six-week course in Personal Development in the World of Work. They received certificates April 24.

25 MSSD graduates complete class

Twenty-five MSSD graduates received certificates April 24 for completing a six-week course in Personal Development in the World of Work.

The course was co-sponsored by MSSD and Programs in Adult and Community Education (PACE), as well as the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of the District of Columbia.

Course topics included personal and professional goal setting, interview skills, resume writing, dress and grooming for success, personal habits and attitudes on the job and financial management.

Carolyn Williamson, Academy of

Certified Social Workers (ACSW), the alumni career development and placement coordinator at MSSD, and Maurice Dorsey, director of the Cooperative Extension Program for the Fifth District at the University of the District of Columbia, were the instructors for the course.

Lunch program notice

Friday, May 17 will mark the final day of the lunch program at "Ole Jim" until service resumes in the fall. The Happy Hour program, however, will continue on Thursday and Friday evenings until further notice.

A panel of students field questions during the April 23 supervisors' workshop sponsored by the Office of Experiential Programs Off Campus. A panel of supervisors also shared their experiences working with deaf students.

EPOC holds supervisors' workshop

by Anne Nissen

In 1980 the staff at the Office of Experiential Programs Off Campus (EPOC) analyzed the success and worth of the various work experiences that Gallaudet students were afforded through the EPOC program. That analysis showed that the more prepared and motivated a supervisor and co-worker were to receive a deaf student, the more worthwhile the work experience was for the student, the supervisor and the co-workers.

Thus, the idea of training workshops for EPOC supervisors was born. Since that time, the EPOC office has held such a training every spring and fall, with the participation rate ranging from 25 to 47. Various faculty and staff members and EPOC students help present the material to be covered during the workshops.

At the most recent workshop on April 23, John McNamara, an audiologist at MSSD, gave a presentation entitled "Types and Causes of Deafness." Mal Grossinger of the Office of Enrollment Management talked about the "Psycho-Social Aspects of Deafness" as they relate to the workplace.

As with previous workshops, a supervisor and student panel were included in the day's activities.

Students met with participants during lunch, giving the supervisors an opportunity to communicate one-on-one with a deaf person. For many, this was their first meeting with a deaf person.

Other activities during the program

Students to perform

MSSD students will present a special excerpted performance of the school's spring production, "West Side Story," during King Dominion's Deaf Awareness Day '85 set for June 1.

Special shows and exhibits will be featured during the day, with interpreters on hand and discount tickets available. Exhibits will be located under the amusement park's Eiffel Tower. Interpreters will be stationed at Guest Services, the first aid areas and at several of the live shows.

Tickets will be available to groups of 10 or more for $8.50 per person (paid for in advance). Individuals can purchase tickets at Kings Dominion on June 1 for $9.50. The regular front gate price is $14.50 per person.

For more information, call Kings Dominion at (804) 876-5000 or write: Kings Dominion, Deaf Awareness Day, Doswell, VA, 23047.

Mary Gawlik of EPOC talks to workshop participants about the tinnitus maskers.

included a communication and problem-solving exercise in which all supervisors participated, a bloopers skit on how not to use an interpreter and specific training in good supervisory techniques. Seven of the participants also wore for a short time tinnitus maskers, hearing aids which mask sound at about a 60 to 70 percent decibel loss.

Participants for the workshop included representatives from the MITRE Corporation, the Capital Children's Museum, the Green Door, Hospital for Sick Children, IBM, Grocery Manufacturers of America and numerous federal agencies.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer-education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College receive substantial financial support from the Department of Education.

A pie eating contest was one of the highlights of a community picnic held at the Northwest Campus Sunday, April 28. The picnic was sponsored by the Gallaudet Community Relations Council.

Among Ourselves

Terrence McGovern, an assistant professor in the Department of Romance Languages, delivered two lectures at the College of William & Mary on April 4. He spoke on "Medieval Philology as a Modern Discipline" and "Foreign Language Education for the Deaf."

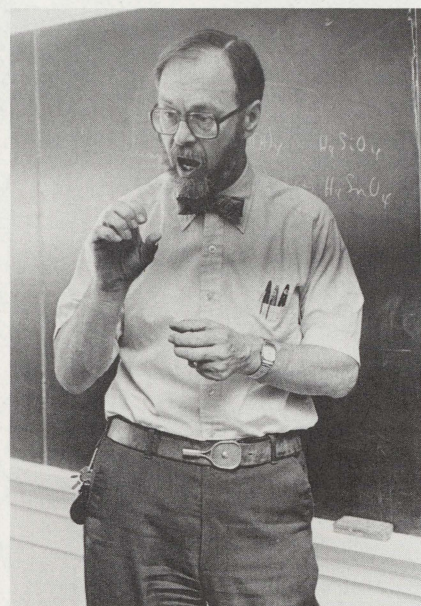

Katherine D. Seelman, a researcher at the Gallaudet Research Institute, presented a paper entitled "Technological Innovation and Deafness: Case Studies in Telecommunications for Deaf Persons" April 26 before the Western Social Science Association and the Society for the Study of Chronic Illness, Impairments and Disability in Fort Worth, TX.

Ceil Lucas, an assistant professor of Linguistics, presented the keynote lecture at the Southeastern Conference on Linguistics in Columbia, SC. Her lecture, delivered during the March 28 conference, was entitled "Language Diversity and Classroom Discourse."

Scott Liddell, an associate professor of Linguistics, and Robert E. Johnson, professor of Linguistics, presented lectures at the University of California San Diego Linguistics Department and at the Salk Institute for Bilingual Studies in La Jolla, CA, April 18 and 19. The topics were "Compound Formation in ASL: Implications for the Structure of the Lexicon" and "Numerals, Names for Alphabetic Characters and the Structure of the Lexicon."

Barbara Riggs of the Department of Sign Communication gave a workshop entitled "XSL—A Technique for Teaching Training" at the Regional Conference on Sign Communication Instruction. The conference was held April 26 and 27 at Gallaudet.

Donald Peterson is an associate professor and chairman of the Chemistry Department.

Most graduates would attend Gallaudet again, Alumni Survey finds

Among the findings of the 1984 Alumni Survey:

- A large majority of graduates (63 percent) reported that they continued their formal education after receiving their undergraduate degrees. Forty two percent of all graduates have earned advanced degrees (40 percent earning master's degrees and two percent earning doctorate degrees). This is much higher than the national norm for obtaining advanced degrees;
- More than half (57 percent) of those who dropped out of College re-

General campus announcements

- The new Gallaudet College videotape, "A Sense of Wonder, A Sense of Worth," will be available for viewing by the campus community Thursday, May 16 from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in LW 11 of the Merrill Learning Center. The videotape is 15 minutes long.

- The bookstore will conduct a used book buy back Friday, May 10 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

- Two persons are needed to take electronic notes during this summer's ELDERHOSTEL program on campus.

A process known as Scanvertiser will be used during the program to display printed notes of ongoing lectures to participants. The Scanvertiser system consists of a standard typewriter keyboard and a display board.

Two persons will be hired to take notes during the mornings the week of June 9-13. Class hours are 8 a.m. to noon. Each notetaker will work two to three hours. Payment can be made to an individual or to the department that releases the individual for the assignment.

Notetakers must be able to type at least 60 words per minute and have good note taking skills. Familiarity with hearing loss and its implications—the topic of the program—is also helpful.

Interested persons should contact Gina Oliva at x5365 or x5682.

- Members of the Gallaudet community are encouraged to participate in the upcoming Gallaudet College Alumni Association's 32nd Triennial Reunion. The reunion is set for June 19-23.

Materials such as brochures and booklets about different departments on campus will be distributed to reunion guests. Departments interested in distributing such materials should send them to Mary Anne Pugin at "Ole Jim" before May 31.

An exhibition will be held Saturday, June 22, and campus departments can set up a booth in the multipurpose room of Ely Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Anyone with questions should call Mary Anne Pugin at x5105 (TDD) or x5277 (voice).

- An art exhibit and sale will be held June 20-23 in the Ely Center art exhibition room during the 32nd Triennial Reunion of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association.

Deaf artists, hobbyists and members of the College community are invited to enter works in the exhibition of arts, crafts and photography.

For details, contact Sharon Staehle at x5105.

- Doug Dickinson, a student at Gallaudet, won the bookstore's drawing of a Callmate electronic clock-radio-telephone.

- Former Gallaudet President Edward C. Merrill, Jr. was named last month to the Board of Directors of the National Captioning Institute (NCI).

Merrill has served as a volunteer consultant to NCI's Corporate Advisory Board since he retired as Gallaudet's fourth president in 1983.

Volunteer dinner received the David Peikoff Volunteer Award which honors an outstanding Gallaudet alumnus/volunteer. John K. "Ken" Linn, Jr., a retired Department of Defense employee who has given the College many hours of invaluable proofreading services, was presented with the Community Volunteer of the Year Award.

Special Recognition Awards were made to long-time Alumni Office volunteer Flo Crammatte and to Martha Grant, a retired home economics teacher who has given the NICD more than 500 volunteer hours since 1982.

In addition, College Provost John Schuchman presented the Gallaudet Volunteer Program with the Gallaudet Community Relations Council's Community Outreach Award.

Perhaps one of the biggest contributions during the volunteer dinner was made by Isadore "Izzy" Zisman. Zisman "volunteered" to assist Gary Lensbower in a magic trick. Lensbower removed his shirt without disturbing his jacket. Zisman literally "gave the shirt off his back for Gallaudet."

Don Pettingill, special assistant to the vice president for College Relations, prepares for the worst as he assists Gary Lensbower during his act.

ported that they would return to Gallaudet if they could start college again;

- Only one third of the graduates indicated that they would "probably" or "definitely" select the same major if they were to return to college;

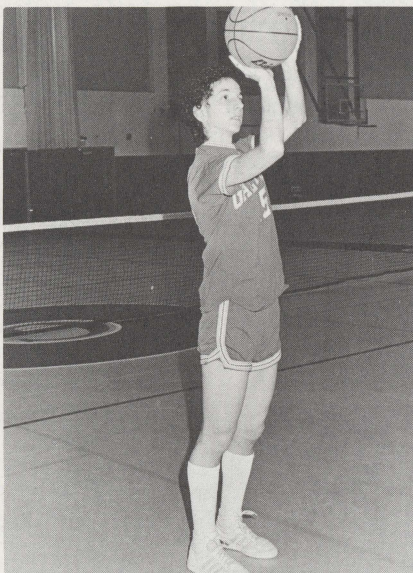

- Business administration majors (48 percent) expressed the most satisfaction with their choice of major;

- The most frequently reported reason graduates gave for selecting Gallaudet was the opportunity to associate with other deaf persons (75 percent). Other frequently reported reasons included social atmosphere (56 percent), advice of high school personnel (43 percent), the types of programs offered (37 percent) and the College's academic reputation (36 percent); and

- When asked for comments and suggestions for educational changes, 80 percent of the graduates gave opinions. The most frequent suggestion offered was that curriculum offerings be expanded and more technical courses offered.

Copies of the survey report are available from the Office of Demographic Studies and the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement.

Basketball players score 1,000 points

Two members of the Gallaudet women's basketball team scored more than 1,000 career points during the past season.

Jo Ann O'Neill, a senior visual media major, and Felice Pyser, a junior education major, became the first women basketball players at Gallaudet to score at least 1,000 points in career play.

O'Neill, who played for Gallaudet for four years, scored her 1,000th career point during a game against Mary Baldwin College on Feb. 2. At five feet six inches tall, she played primarily at the forward/wing position but also played at the guard and center positions.

Pyser, who has played three years for Gallaudet and will play her final season next year, scored her 1,000th point Feb. 16 during a Catholic University Tournament game against the College of Notre Dame. Pyser, at five feet seven inches tall, is a forward.

Both women will participate in their second World Games for the Deaf when they join the United States' women's basketball team during this summer's World Games for the Deaf. The team, which will be coached by Gallaudet women's basketball coach Kitty Baldrige, will include seven Gallaudet women on its 12-member roster.

Wrestler named to Metro All-Star team

An MSSD student was selected for the Washington, D.C. Metro All-Star wrestling team. Toselli Silvestri, a senior at MSSD who wrestles in the 167-pound weight class, was also the first deaf student to be named to the Washington Post's 1985 All-Met wrestling team.

Silvestri's record for the 1984-85 season is 43 wins and no losses. His career record is 93 wins and seven losses.

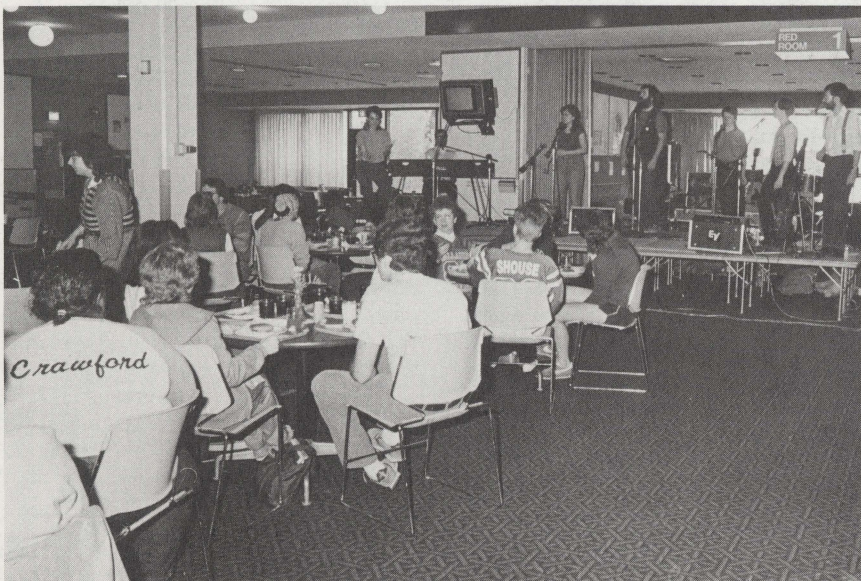

His 1984-85 victories include triumphing at the ESDAA meet (making Silvestri a three-time ESDAA champion), taking the St. Albans and National Prep Tournament crowns and winning at the St. Anselms and Mason-

Dixon invitational meets.

According to Silvestri's coach, Marty Willigan, "His main attribute throughout his career has been his extraordinary balance which he's used to defeat his numerous opponents." Willigan also noted that at MSSD Silvestri has earned the nickname "Mr. Wrestling."

In addition to his other honors, Silvestri was selected to wrestle for the U.S. wrestling team in the World Games for the Deaf.

Speaking of his motivation in a recent article in the Delaware Times, Silvestri said, "I just want to prove that deaf people can wrestle. I want to prove that being deaf is no handicap."

"Bright Morning Star," a music group active in the environmental and peace movements, performs in the College Dining Hall. The May 2 concert was sponsored by the Student Union, a unit of Student Affairs.
